It is the object of the following pages to point out one of those causes - a master cause - and to suggest its remedy. Should the writer appear severe, let it be remembered, that no disorder, of any magnitude, whether physical or moral, can be removed by lenitives. The medical poison must be given at once; the limb must be amputated; the lust must be crucified while it is not yet too late, or the patient perishes. The writer disclaims entirely, all intention of giving offense. It is the extinction of crime, not the injury of criminals, which he seeks; and he speaks boldly of criminals, that their iniquity may not prove their own and their country s ruin. The case to which he alludes is Negro Slavery. As a political evil he meddles not with it; but as a moral crime, it is a common nuisance, and fills him with horror and alarm. He finds it an infraction of all righteous law. He sees that it is the bane of all true love; an act of high-treason against God: and an outrage, concentrating in itself all outrages, against man. He cannot believe the Bible without...
