P. O. , distributor, 1999. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)44448035 Subject: Finance, Public -- Auditing -- Standards -- United States. Excerpt: . . . Amendment No. 2: Auditor Communication 4. 21. 1 AICPA standards and GAGAS require that, in all audits, auditors obtain an understanding of internal control sufficient to plan the audit by performing procedures to understand ( 1 ) the design of controls relevant to an audit of financial statements and ( 2 ) whether the controls have been placed in operation. This understanding should include a consideration of the methods an entity uses to process accounting information because such methods influence the design of internal control. The extent to which computerized information systems are used in significant accounting 5. 1 applications, as well as the complexity of that processing, may also influence the nature, timing, and extent of audit procedures. Accordingly, in planning the audit and in obtaining an understanding of internal control over an entitys computer processing, auditors should consider, among other things, such matters as a. the extent to which computer processing is used in 5. 2 each significant accounting application; b. the complexity of the entitys computer operations; c. the organizational structure of the computer processing activities; and d. the kinds and competence of available evidential matter, in electronic and in paper formats, to achieve audit objectives. 5. 1 Significant accounting applications are those which relate to accounting information that can materially affect the financial statements the auditor is auditing. Significant accounting applications could include financial as well as other systems, such as management information systems or systems that monitor compliance, if they...
